

Obstructive sleep apnoea

Obstructive sleep apnoea (OSA) affects between 3 – 7% of the Australian population.

OSA is a serious disorder where the muscles in the throat relax or the muscles that control breathing don't function correctly, resulting in breathing that stops and starts during sleep.

The probability of developing this serious disorder is affected by a number of factors, including:

- Obesity
- Age
- High blood pressure
- Depression
- Heart disease
- Type 2 diabetes

Sleep diagnostic and therapy program

Maximising sleep.

Pharmacies are our first choice

We partner with pharmacies to provide a high quality sleep service.

Pharmacies are uniquely placed as health service professionals within the community, which means they are our first choice for a sleep service partnership.

BOC offers pharmacies training in both the diagnostic and treatment processes of sleep apnoea.

By providing sleep diagnostic and therapy within your pharmacy, you are enabling a crucial and important health service to your community. Bulk-billed sleep diagnostic tests are effective in identifying the underlying cause of a patient's symptoms, such as daytime tiredness, as well as in assessing the potential existence of associated factors. In addition, being equipped to also offer sleep therapy allows the pharmacy to provide a unified approach to treatment of the patient's condition.
